This handsome cat is living proof that some of us don't get older, we just get better.

He may be 14 years old, however he acts like a much younger guy.

Butch is in good health and we recently gave him a dental cleaning so he now has shiny pearly whites.

This blue eyed (and slightly crossed) Siamese mix is a big boy and is declawed, but that doesn't prevent him from climbing up into your lap.

He and a couple other cats were surrendered to a shelter in eastern Washington as their humans had lost their homes, possibly due to the recent fires.

He is at Homeward now, but a shelter is no place for a senior cat to spend his retirement years, so we are hopeful that this “looker” will charm someone very soon. Could it be you?

Come meet Butch at Homeward Pet! We are located at 13132 NE 177th Place in Woodinville and are open for visitors between noon and 6 p.m., Wednesday through Sunday.

See all our adoptable dogs, cats, kittens and puppies at www.homewardpet.org.

Homeward Pet wants your pet to have the best form of identification available. Bring your cat or dog to Homeward Pet between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., October 12-13 to be microchipped and registered for free while supplies last.

All animals brought in for microchipping must be spayed or neutered.
